Childnet is a UK-based charity who work to make the internet a great and safe place for children. From their innovative, free resources to their training visits to schools across the UK, Childnet has stayed at the cutting edge of the latest tech trends by speaking to thousands of children, young people, parents and carers online and face-to-face each year.

Launching in 1995, Childnet has delivered a positive impact for almost 30 years. With its empowering, youth led, evidence based and collaborative approach to online safety, Childnet gives children and young people the skills they need to navigate the internet safely and positively.

Childnet's key aim is to give young people, families and schools the knowledge and skills they need to make the most out of their time online. By working with technology companies, government, charities and others both in the UK and around the world, they ensure young people's rights are prioritised so their interests are promoted and protected online.

As one of three charities in the UK Safer Internet Centre, Childnet coordinates Safer Internet Day in the UK, which reaches millions of UK children every year with activities, information and advice about key online issues.

Childnet achieves a wider impact through giving young people a voice and influencing best practice and policy, both in the UK and internationally, for example sitting on Meta Safety Advisory Council, the Anti-Bullying Alliance Advisory Board and chairing the national Early Warning Working Group.
